"The Dollars of the Daddies"

You know how hard they were earned, how carefully they were husbanded, how judiciously they were invested.

The dollars grew into hundreds, the hundreds into houses, into farms, into wise and profitable business investments. These "dollars of the daddies" are the basis of our present prosperity. They were not lured into speculation, or into risky investments. The "daddies" demanded security and accepted the returns absolute safety gave.

What about your dollars? Are they absolutely safe? Make them so by starting an account with this institution at once and allow your mind to be relieved from all attendant worries occasioned by questionable financial deals.

Eastern Connecticut Heirs Receive Checks from Estate of Henry W. Lothrop of Providence—Dunn Company May Take Elmville Mill—Death of Simon S. Waldo.

A score of eastern Connecticut people are in receipt of checks for varying sums from the estate of Henry W. Lothrop, who died in Providence five years ago, leaving $100,000. The time since Mr. Lothrop's death has been consumed by the trustees of the Rhode Island Trust company in effort to locate all the heirs and the settlement now being made complete. A strange and unusual story relative to the search for the heirs and the distribution of the fortune.

Henry W. Lothrop died Tuesday, January 6, 1904, at his home on John street, Providence. He was a bachelor, a scholar, and devoted part of his life to scientific research and in the study and collection of all sorts of insects. He was an expert. He compiled many papers, subjects all incident to this special line of research, many of them of great value, though few have been published. He was connected with various historical and scientific organizations.

Mr. Lothrop died without leaving a wife or a child, and, not over to his aged housekeeper, who had been with him since his boyhood, and the search for heirs began. Mr. Adams V. Carroll of Providence, a relative, undertook the task. Since Mr. Lothrop was a bachelor, with all lines of relatives, it became necessary to trace the descendants of upwards twenty brothers and sisters of those grand old days. The search was a century and a half ago, whose living descendants, the rightful heirs, were largely unknown. The fifth and sixth generations, and scattered through every state in the union, Canada, Newfoundland, Alaska, and even in Europe and South America. Altogether they have been found to number 545.

Starting at once when town records of births, deaths and marriages, providing they were kept at all, were exceedingly defective, when large families were the rule, when the spirit of migrating westward was most prevalent, when all means of communication were so imperfect, it was no trace of one another was readily lost. Separating, some achieved great success, becoming United States senators, doctors of divinity, famous engineers, prominent in business and members of distinguished and wealthy families. Others filled more humble positions in life, as tillers of the soil, miners, sailors and cowboys, all forming a group of heirs who had little idea of being the same and who were scattered all over the world.

The boy that appeared before the committee and stated that he was the father of nineteen children and that the oldest child was practically an invalid, was in striving to make both ends meet and receives a weekly wage of about $7 as an employee in a local mill.

Wants Instrumental Music in Curriculum.

Principal Dickson of the Windham High school appeared and requested that the committee take action on the matter of pupils leaving one school and going to another without permission of the school committee. No official action was taken, as only a quorum was present. The committee voted to approve the action of Principal Dickson in suspending two boys from the high school for conduct unbecoming desirable pupils. The principal also brought up the matter of the high school orchestra and desired to have some action taken by the town by which it might be made permanent. The school committee is now considering the matter.

Verdict for Defendant in Case of Stapleton vs. Adams—Onco Man Charged With Damage to Mother's Property—Foot Amputated to Save Life.

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by the jury in the case of John Stapleton vs. Helen S. Adams. The jury was out about an hour and a half after noon when the verdict was returned. It was a claim of $50 by the plaintiff for labor. For a case of comparative non-importance it held on for two days, as well as causing an expense to the state of more than the amount in dispute. It was nearly 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when the jury returned the verdict, because of the late hour Judge Curtis adjourned court until Tuesday morning. The case assigned. All of the jurors were ordered to be in attendance when court opens this (Thursday) morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mother Against Son.

The case next to be heard is that of Margaret Foley of Oneco vs. James W. Foley, a claim of $1000. It is a claim for damages to the house in which the plaintiff claims damages of $1000. It is a sequel to a suit in which the same parties appeared before the court in this city last spring, when Mrs. Foley claimed $2,500 damages from her son, who was in charge of his property in Oneco and collected the rent. The case was settled by Mr. Foley agreeing to withdraw his one-third interest in the property and vacate the hotel at Onco, included in the estate by July 1, 1908.

The present claim of Mrs. Foley is for damages to the property and building by her son's alleged removal of the workbench, tanks, plumbing and fixtures of the bar in the saloon connected with the hotel.

Putnam people will be interested in the list of heirs living in Putnam, printed in the Danielson news this morning, who are receiving their proportionate shares of the estate of the late Henry W. Lothrop of Providence.
